LOUISVILLE, MONDAY MORNING, OCTOBER 18, 1869.

NEW SERIES--VOL. I, NO. 163.

THE CITY.

Lost.
A plain gold ring, 18 carots, was lost yesterday at the corner of Fourth and Jefferson. The finder will be handsomely rewarded on leaving it at the Mayor's office.

Remarkably Quiet.
The city never was so quiet and orderly last night, scarcely any one to be seen in the streets. The slate at the jail showed only one arrest up to 11 o'clock, none at all at the Superintendent's office.

An Ugly Hole.
The attention of the Water Works Company is directed to the condition of the sewer plug on the corner of Fourth and Second streets. Several persons have been ready "put their foot in it," and it is surprising that some one has not been injured.

Going to Frankfort.
The Sheriff of Breckinridge county arrived last night in charge of Vastian Lambert and Horace Boyd, just convicted of grand larceny. They are on their way to Frankfort, where they will for a time take up their residence in the State institution built expressly for their accommodation. They lodged last night at the Jefferson county institute.

Stop It.
The attention of the police is called to the crowds of negroes who make it their business to gather on the northwest and southwest corners of Green and Preston streets. They block up the sidewalk so that it is almost impossible to pass along. They do this every day and every night, and especially on Sunday. Let the nuisance be abated at once.

United States Hotel.
This hotel is now undergoing a series of alterations and improvements, outside and in, which will render it one of the most attractive houses in the West. The proprietors are determined that the United States shall stand forth on the list in appreciation of the accommodations for the traveling public, and they know how to do it.

To Wait on the President.
It will be remembered that President Grant sent a congratulatory dispatch on the assembling of the Commercial Convention. The committee of nine appointed to wait on him to return thanks for the interest he manifested will meet in the Willard Hotel, Washington, on November 1st, for that purpose. Gen. Wallbridge, of New York, is the chairman.

The Battered Brothers.
These wonderful gentlemen will to-night open their budget of interesting performances at Weisiger Hall, and continue with us seven nights. That they do perform some miraculous feats cannot be denied by any one, but whether they are aided by spirits, or are the greatest magicians in the world, is for the audience to determine, if they can. Of course, Weisiger Hall will be crowded during their stay among us. Those who wish good seats should secure them in advance.

A Church Loner.
Wm. Martin was caught Saturday night in the First Baptist Church, by the sexton, and arrested in one of the pews near the pulpit. He has, it seems, been in the habit of taking his nightly lodgings in that sacred place. With the assistance of the police, whom the sexton soon secured, Mr. Martin was arrested and locked up in the station-house, a much more fitting place for such as he.

Seriously Injured.
A deck-hand, whose name did not transpire, while engaged in his duties, fell down a stairway, or into the hold of the General Buell, on her way down Saturday night, and received several very severe cuts on the head, such as to disable him from moving. On the arrival of the boat yesterday morning he was sent to the United States Marine Hospital, where his injuries were dressed.

The Circus.
The world-renowned Robinson, the champion rider, will be here this morning with his splendid circus troupe, and in connection with Gardner & Kenyon's menagerie, will exhibit at the corner of East and Walnut. Robinson and his little boy Clarence, only eight years old, and already celebrated as a rider, will perform some of the most daring and brilliant feats ever attempted on horseback. Two exhibitions will be given to-day, to-morrow and on Wednesday. This is Robinson's first appearance since his return from Europe, where he received the belt as the world's champion. Of course the canvas will be crowded.

Masonic Grand Lodge.
As already announced in these columns, the Grand Lodge of Kentucky will convene to-day in the Masonic Temple. Their sittings will be held in the Opera House, and as most of the members are from abroad, we notify them that the entrance is now on Jefferson street. The following eminent officers have arrived and are stopping at the National Hotel: E. L. Fitch, Grand Master. V. H. Jones, Grand Senior Warden. A. G. Hodges, Grand Treasurer. John M. Todd, Assistant Grand Secretary.

Much business of interest to Masons will come before that body during its present session.

THE GENERAL COUNCIL.

Various Important Measures.

According to adjournment, the General Council will meet to-night. Questions of great importance to the best interests of the city will come before that body for discussion and action. Some of these questions have been before the members for several weeks. They have been examined in all possible lights. At any rate the members have had abundant time to so examine. The canal basin is one of those questions—one that ought to be settled immediately. The lower end of the city want the basin, which they were promised so many years ago, and toward the creation of which the city two or three years ago bought considerable property in the canal bottoms. An agreement between the canal company and the city is now before the Board of Aldermen, and that agreement should be ratified at once or rejected.

The Kentucky River Improvement Company has asked of the city the insignificant subscription of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars. The ordinance has been laid away in some member's drawer in the B. of A., and forgotten for the last four or five weeks. It is time he should wake up to the necessities of the people, and report the ordinance. If he can't report favorably, let him report unfavorably, and let the board act as members may see proper. Our people will save more in one year, in the price they pay for their coal—thirty thousand dollars more—than the whole subscription amounts to. But whether they save or not, they demand the right to vote on the proposition, and all that the Board of Aldermen has to do in the matter, is to adopt the ordinance and put it before the public for confirmation or rejection.

The connection question came to a hitch in the lower board at the last meeting, just as the vote was to be taken on the amendment adopted by the upper board. It will be remembered, no doubt, that the Board of Aldermen adopted the resolution presented by Mr. Dulany, employing Mr. George McLeod to make a survey of all the routes for the connection which had been proposed, between the Ohio river on the north, and the House of Refuge on the south, to be assisted by the City Engineer. In the lower board the resolution was amended so as to employ Mr. McLeod or some other competent engineer, and the resolution, as thus amended, would have passed, had it not been for the delay tactics—points of order, &c., &c., ad nauseum—which have of late become such favorites with some of the members. The people are tired of such dilly-dallying, such wasting of time and money, and they want action. They do not demand action without proper information, but they do demand that the Council act at once in such a way as to obtain at the earliest possible moment all the information they may need.

The people of the east end are looking for the necessary action in reference to the levee along Fulton street, so that the property in the creek bottom may in time be redeemed from the floods which overflow them twice a year. The issue of bonds has been authorized by the Legislature to the amount of $100,000, and it is but the part of wisdom to issue the bonds at once, and have them put on the market—at least a part of them, so that the money may be had ready to begin work at the earliest possible moment. It is not too late in the season yet. Much might be done before severe weather sets in; but whether the work is begun now or not, the money ought to be ready so that on the opening of the spring, the great work may progress without an hour's delay.

There are other questions of great importance which will or should engage the attention of the Council, and it is to be sincerely hoped they will not waste time, but go to work with a will.

American Christian Missionary Convention.

This convention of delegates from a religious people numbering over five hundred thousand members, meets in this city, at the Christian church, on the corner of Fourth and Walnut streets, to-morrow afternoon, at two o'clock. A number of the prominent speakers and writers of the Christian church have already arrived. The three pulpits of this church in the city were occupied yesterday by some of these eminent gentlemen. President Pendleton, of Bethany College, Virginia, delivered a very able discourse at eleven o'clock, in the church on Fourth and Walnut, to a very large and attentive audience. The Rev. Isaac Errett, editor of the Christian Standard, preached at the same place last night, to a crowded house. The Rev. Mr. Proctor, of Missouri, filled the pulpit at the corner of Floyd and Chestnut streets, in the morning, and the Rev. Mr. Sweeney, of Chicago, preached at night, in the same edifice. The very neat and admirable church on the corner of Fifteenth and Jefferson streets, was well-filled. Some of the delegates preached there morning and evening.

The proceedings of this convention will undoubtedly be interesting and important, and we shall endeavor to keep the readers of the Express properly advised on the important and interesting points. This is the twenty-fourth annual session of this body, but the first held in Cincinnati. Between two and three hundred preachers will be present, many of whom have already arrived.

THE OHIO RIVER BRIDGE.

Terrible Disasters.

Death held high carnival at the bridge Saturday afternoon, adding five certainly, perhaps six, to the already large number of fatal accidents which have occurred in the last few months.

About two o'clock in the afternoon John Bodkins, a carpenter, at work on span No. 13, slipped from his position, or lost his balance, and fell from the dizzy height. He was killed instantly. The employees on the bridge had not recovered from the effect of this accident upon them, when they were absolutely appalled at the still greater one which occurred between four and five o'clock at span 16.

The workmen were engaged in putting to its place the trestle-work for this span. Four of the sections had been placed, but not properly secured. The fifth had been raised to its position by means of a rope attached to a locomotive, but the engineer was not signaled to stop in time, or the locomotive made a start ahead before the rope had been loosed. The consequence was that the fifth section was pulled over upon the fourth, and like a row of bricks, the whole mass fell in one crash upon each other and against pier No. 16, breaking the trestle-work to pieces. There were six workmen on the trestle when the accident occurred, John R. Payne, John Kirby Riley, Wm. Irvin, Oscar Gallagher, Matt. McClure and Robert Gensley, the latter two on a lower part of the work.

Payne was at the top, and seeing the crash coming, caught hold of a piece of timber to save himself, but was struck and knocked to the river below. His neck was broken and his body terribly injured. Riley was on top of another trestle, but failing to catch, fell into the river, and was carried away. It is said that he was struck by some of the falling timber, and must have been killed instantly. As soon as possible, parties put off in a skiff to the rescue, but not being able to find any traces of him, they returned, after going as far as the Big Eddy. Irvin and Gallagher, both laborers were knocked from the upper part of the trestles. Irvin died about eight o'clock that night, and Gallagher's injuries are believed to be fatal. He was still living, however, at 4 o'clock last evening. McClure and Gensley, the two who were on the lower portion of the work, were severely injured, but it is believed not fatally. Mr. Payne was from Cincinnati, and with his wife and one child, was boarding at 487 Jefferson street. This was terrible news to the wife, and fears were entertained that the shock would be too much for her. Happily, she survived. Yesterday afternoon the body, followed by the widow and the orphan, left the city for Cincinnati, where the funeral will be held.

Mr. Riley, also a carpenter, was from Memphis, but was boarding on High street, between Thirteenth and Fourteenth. He leaves a family of five children, who are living with his mother in Memphis. The body has not yet been recovered. Mr. Irvin was of Irish descent, about thirty-five years old. He came from Tennessee, and was by trade a bridge builder. He was not known to have any family, but was boarding at No. 73 Rowan street. Mr. Gallagher is very severely injured, but it is hoped his life may be saved. This great double disaster has cast a terrible shadow all over the lower part of the city, and yesterday the one great theme of conversation in all circles. It caused a stampede among the workmen at the bridge, not one of whom was at work yesterday, the first Sunday in a long time that work has not been carried on as actively as any other day of the week. Thousands upon thousands of people visited the bridge yesterday. In fact, a constant stream was going and coming from early morning till dark. But no one was permitted to go out on the bridge beyond the south end of the draw over the canal, the draw being turned aside.

James Robinson, the Champion Rider of the World.
With his beautiful troupe of equestrians and acrobats, will arrive in Louisville this morning, in full procession, giving to the public an exhibition of the splendid ring stock, cages of wild beasts, and general traveling paraphernalia. In the same tent, and included in the same charge, may be seen the largest and most valuable collection of living wild beasts in this country. The fame of James Robinson is known all over the world, and he wears the champion's belt as the greatest rider living. The tent, colossal as it is in its dimensions, will scarcely contain all who will desire to see "the great horseman of the age."

For the Express.
"Honor to Whom Honor is Due."
The gentleman who found the money lost by Dr. Graves, on Saturday, and who restored it to the owner so promptly, was Mr. R. L. Moses, clerk in the house of Messrs. Moss & Semple, and not the undersigned, as stated in Sunday's Courier. To Mr. Moses belongs all the merit of the transaction, which the Courier has unwittingly bestowed on
Yours, very truly,
B. L. Swope.

Louisville Opera House.

To-night we have a return to the drama, the regular company having arrived at home from Evansville, where they played to excellent houses. Mr. John E. Owens, the great comedian, begins to-night an engagement for six nights only, presenting a change of programme every evening. He will appear every evening, supported by the strength of the company. Owens is a great actor, and with the exception, perhaps, of Jefferson, is the most successful of any in the country.

INDIANA.

Two Men Killed and Another Found Dead—Others Ordered to Leave the County.

A shooting affair occurred at Taylorsville, Warrick county, on Sunday, the 10th instant, resulting in the death of two if not three men. The difficulty was between two men, named Springston, on the one side, and two named Clark, on the other, in which Harvey Springston was killed and his brother Abe so badly wounded that he died soon afterward. Harvey Springston was recently pardoned out of the penitentiary. The difficulty originated in a dispute about the settlement of some accounts. Shortly after the shooting a number of the citizens, who compose a self-constituted vigilance committee, proceeded, armed and equipped, to the residence of Moss Rice, who had been warned to leave the neighborhood by the 10th inst., and fired several shots, frightening him so that he cleaned up in a hurry, leaving the neighborhood. The Springstons are said to belong to the vigilance committee. Another of the Rices, who had been warned to leave, but paid no attention to the warning, was found dead in the woods near the town, shot, and that two Whitings, father and son, who refused to take any part, either for or against the committee, were also warned to leave the neighborhood. A terrible state of affairs exists, and law-abiding people seem to be paralyzed.

Young Men's Christian Association.

For some time past the members of the Young Men's Christian Association have not been as active in the performance of the work for which the association was organized as they were formerly. They have determined, however, to renew their efforts to aid our young men and strangers in spiritual and temporal things, and, to this end a meeting will be held in the rooms of the association this evening. Now, it is earnestly requested that every young man who desires to do good, to aid others in doing good, and every one who desires to aid in the building up and establishing upon a firm basis an institution that will be a credit to our city, is urged to be present at the meeting to-night.

It may be said that to-night the association will begin a new life. There is no reason why it should not, for there is a great field of usefulness here for such an organization. Rev. Mr. Mitchell, who has been elected Superintendent, enters upon his duties with the entire confidence of the management. He has been chosen to fill this responsible position on account of his peculiar fitness, as a gentleman, a scholar and a Christian. That he will throw new life into the work, and will bend his energies to the filling up of the broken ranks in the membership of the association there can be no doubt. He should be sustained in the work. Let all who desire to see the Louisville association prosper as similar associations have prospered elsewhere, go to the meeting to-night, and lend their influence and their aid. One or two able speakers have been urged to be present to-night, and the meeting will be one of unusual interest.

The Great Base Ball Match.

A large number of the admirers of base ball left last evening on the Short-line railroad to see the match at Cincinnati, between the Red Stockings and the Athletics of Philadelphia. Thousands of spectators will be there. This will be the fourth game between these clubs—two last year, in which the Athletics were victorious, and one last June, in which the "Reds" carried off the victory by a score of twenty-seven to eighteen. In this game the Philadelphia club was without the assistance of their veteran captain and crack pitcher, McBride, and also their well known third baseman, Fornam.

The Quaker City papers said at the time that if these two gentlemen had been able to play, the result of the game would have been different.

On this game will probably depend the championship of the United States.

DAN RICE.

Daniel Come to Judgment.
When Dan Rice was at New Albany he was arrested for non-payment of wharfage for his steamer Will S. Hays. He refused to pay. The case was tried before Mayor Hart and Dan was fined the usual fine. He swore he would never pay a cent and that it was an imposition—he would appeal the case and test the question. Judgment was entered up against him, and by the time the writ was issued for the money, Dan had traveled. Mayor Hart made out a transcript of the judgment from his docket and sent it to James R. W. Smith, attorney, in this city, to collect. Saturday the money was collected and paid to the authorities of New Albany, fine and costs. So it was the judgment that came to Daniel.

Pickpocket in Church.

Of all the despicable fellows in creation he is one of the most who will go to church for the deliberate purpose of committing sin. Such a fellow attended the 10 o'clock service at the Cathedral yesterday morning. Mrs. O'Neil was sitting in the same pew with him, and pulled her pocket-book out of her pocket to put some money into the collection, and is confident she returned it to its place. She noticed that a young man who sat beside her took his leave before the service was concluded, but paid no especial attention. On arriving at home she found her pocket-book gone with all its contents—seven five-dollar bills and one ten in one of the pockets and two tens in another, in all sixty-five dollars. It is to be hoped he may be caught and dealt with as he deserves.

The Election Saturday.

The vote of Saturday was one of the smallest ever cast in the city, the total vote at noon not exceeding 300. At the close of the polls, not more than 1,000 had been cast. The returns, so far as received, are quite defective, and the official count only, will show the actual vote. The ordinance authorizing a subscription of half a million to the St. Louis Air Line was passed by a very handsome majority, as compared with the total number of votes. The vote in the several wards was as follows, according to the returns thus far made:

Ward.	For.	Against.
First.	84	41
Second.	97	50
Third.	52	92
Fourth.	56	34
Fifth.	22	7
Sixth.	48	12
Seventh.	100	3
Eighth.	181	44
Ninth.	149	41
Tenth.	98	62
Eleventh.	51	8
Twelfth.	51	8
Total.	942	434

Majority for ordinance.....508

ODDS AND ENDS.

The trains Saturday night and yesterday carried away nearly all the delegates who were with us last week.

Ex-President Fillmore was the recipient of a serenade Saturday night, by the orchestra from the Opera House. He was also one of the large congregation in attendance yesterday at St. Paul's Church.

Large numbers of our citizens went to the various depots with departing delegates, and bade them good speed on their way home.

Yesterday was one of the loveliest days ever seen, but the indications were strong last night for more rain.

Fishermen say that the salmon are beginning to bite handsomely now.

Rev. Dr. Rivers, of the Broadway Methodist Church, officiated in the pulpit yesterday, though suffering from a severe attack of vertigo all the morning.

The skating rink Saturday night was the great center of attraction; many strangers were absolutely charmed.

The sentiment of Hon. Erastus Brooks, at the banquet Friday night, at the close of his speech, was one of the most beautiful ever uttered, as follows: "The American States—distinct like the billows, one like the sea; to God we give sovereignty; to the State and Commonwealth freedom, justice and equality; to the people one feeling, fraternity, cordiality and hearty good will."

Louisville Pianos.

Of the many pianos sold in Louisville every year, how many are made in Eastern manufactories? Of the many bought by citizens of Louisville, how many are manufactured in the city? If the citizens of Louisville cannot content themselves to buy the articles made at home, by our own citizens, with what face can they complain of other communities in the State, and through the South, for going to other points, and for refusing or neglecting to encourage Louisville producers? If the home-made article is not so good as the same priced article from some other point, there might be an excuse. But the Express knows that in the matter of pianos the house of Peters, Webb & Co. make and sell for reasonable prices pianos which are equally as good as Eastern instruments which sell for more money. But Peters, Webb & Co. are rapidly overcoming the senseless habit which has hitherto kept Louisville factors in the background. They are rapidly putting their very superior pianos in the parlors of our own citizens, and gaining ground in Southern markets over the Eastern maker. The factory of Peters, Webb & Co. has been in operation some eighteen years, and in that time they have made and sold nearly five thousand instruments. They manufacture grand square and upright pianos, and they guarantee them to be as good and as well finished as any others. Let citizens of Louisville encourage the citizens who are trying to build up the manufacturing interests of the city, by preferring the home-made article.

Cutting Up High.

One of the prisoners arrested Saturday night and locked up in the First-street station for being drunk and disorderly, excelled his out-door performances after the key of the cell was turned on him. He broke loose all the benches from the floor, broke them into pieces, broke up a water bucket, and with a piece of one of the benches made such a furious attack on the two-inch wooden upright of the cell, as to break it. What more he might have done no one can tell, as about that time his friends arrived and bailed him out.

TOWN TOPICS.

Goose & Tucker.

These gentlemen succeed the old firm of Hydes & Goose, dealers in coal, at 139 Fourth street, between Jefferson and Green. They are well prepared to furnish our citizens with the very best article in the market, and at reasonable prices, and as they are gentlemen with whom it will be a pleasure to deal, they will, no doubt, have a large trade. Those who have not laid in the winter's supply should go at once and provide themselves.

A Lick not Amiss.

A drunken fellow yesterday made himself very offensive to an old man on the streets. He wanted to insult and persisted in following him for several squares. At last, the old man took refuge in Capt. Fish Henry's restaurant, and asked protection. It was extended, for when he renewed his threats, some clever fellow battered him over the head, and he laid down on the pavement for a while. He was finally carried off.

PENDLETON AND PACKER.

Will Ohio Ratify the Fifteenth Amendment?

Opinions of the Press.

From the N. Y. World.
Considering the gallant fight that has been made, and the great inroads into the Republican majorities of last year, we feel like offering Messrs. Packer and Pendleton congratulations rather than confidence. These favorite Democratic leaders and able statesmen have demonstrated their great popularity almost as fully as if they had been elected; and at the same time they escape the duties of offices beneath their talents and just pretensions. So far as they are personally concerned, their defeat is a relief and an advantage, except with reference to such aspirations as these eminent standard-bearers of the Democracy are fairly entitled to cherish. Nor ought the recent defeat to be considered as a very formidable obstruction to their future prospects, if they shall be wise enough to recognize the real reasons why, having come so near success, they have still fallen short of it.

From the Chicago Times.

GEORGE H. PENDLETON.
If the Republican newspapers congratulating their readers upon Mr. Pendleton's defeat in Ohio, and assuring them that it strikes his name from the list of Presidential candidates, will pause in their rejoicings to remember that the Democratic party will decide who shall head its ticket in the next Presidential election, they will experience a decrease in their felicity.

Some two and a half years hence will be the right time to make nominations of Presidential candidates, and what may occur in the intervening period to change present calculations, and the prospects of men whose capacity and character have brought them prominently before the people, will not be predicted except by rash and presumptuous men.

It is, however, safe to say that the result of the election just closed in Ohio has not, in the slightest degree, changed the opinion of the Democracy of the nation with regard to Mr. Pendleton. Their esteem and admiration of his honesty, ability and worth as a man could not have been increased, and certainly have not been diminished.

It may be safely said that our political history does not furnish an instance in which the brains and tact of a single man and the magic of his name did better and more effective work than did those of Geo. H. Pendleton in the campaign just closed in Ohio. He has now infinitely more honor in his defeat than his opponents in their triumph, and the people of that State will watch for the opportunity to make such a manifestation of their regard for him as shall be worthy of him.

Whether the Democracy of the nation shall command him to take upon himself the office of a leader, or to do battle in the ranks, are matters to be determined by time and circumstances, but they are wide of the mark who suppose that his intellect is not to make further impress on the financial reform he has raised will lose anything of interest by his recent defeat.

THE STATE LEGISLATURE.

The following is the political complexion of the Senate without counting Messrs. Goepfer and Yeatman, who are elected on the reform ticket, mainly by Democratic votes over the regular Republican nominees:

These two latter gentlemen, therefore hold the balance of power, but it requires them both to give the Republicans the Senate on party questions. If one of them votes with the Democrats, the Senate will take that complexion. We presume they will generally take an independent course, sometimes voting with one and sometimes with the other party.

In the House of Representatives there are one or two members who are not definitely ascertained, but the following is pretty certain to be its complexion:

Regular Democrats.....	5
Regular Republicans.....	5
County Reformers (Hamilton county).....	2
Total.....	12

WAR TO THE KNIFE.

Extermination Waged—Pardoned Insurgents Murdered, Others Fleeing to the Mountains—The Country Abandoned—The Massacre of Jiguani.

Correspondence N. Y. Herald.

MANZANILLO, CUBA, October 3, 1869.

As to the matter of encounters between the combatants in the field, the insurrection would seem to be nearly dead in this vicinity; but, unfortunately, though the bullet and the sword, the number of country people, such as are able to cultivate the soil, is becoming daily less. All military operations are kept extremely secret, but it is well known that a war of extermination is being waged by men ignorant of all laws of civilization and cruel as bloodhounds. We have daily accounts of pardoned insurgents being taken out by foraging parties and shot or cut to pieces with knives. Many who had been permitted to return to their homes on condition of reporting to the Captain del Partido at stated intervals, frightened at these massacres, have fled and joined their compatriots in the mountains, where, for want of proper nourishment, many perished. I learn from reliable sources that not a fifth part of the laboring population remains in this jurisdiction, in Jiguani and Bayamo. The only estate left in this is the "Esperanza," belonging to the house of Venecia, Rodriguez & Co., and the cane fields on that one have been burned, so no crop was raised this season. In the other two the destruction has been equally great. There are but few houses left standing except in the towns, which are crowded with poor and desolate females whose sufferings cannot be portrayed.

It is reported that several bands of rebels are yet in the mountains near La Sierra. They belong to Jordan's force, the main body of which is between Jiguani, Santiago de Cuba and Mayar.

I learn that the massacre at Jiguani was owing to information furnished to Palacios by a renegade priest from the insurgent headquarters at Guaimaro. The memory of this most horrible affair should not be allowed to die out. The night preceding the assassination, Palacios, who was drunk, called in each of the prisoners separately, and as they claimed to be guilty of no offense, barbarously beat them with a club. Another and equally barbarous were perpetrated in this vicinity by this monster, and that he should be allowed to go unpunished surpasses belief. One of Valmaseda's officers states that there was a foreigner among the seventeen shot, and his last words were that his Consul would make the Colonel responsible for his murder.

A Lordly Wedding.

Lord Ainsley's marriage to Miss Lillie, daughter of the late Isaac M. Martin, took place Wednesday noon in New York City. Miss Martin wore a light pearl-colored silk of the richest and most expensive quality. The first or lower skirt was ornamented with a wide, straight flounce, put in box plaits, quite small, and trimmed with two bias folds of velvet, a shade corresponding with the silk. The flounce was headed with a heavy white satin cord. The upper skirt was made quite full, elegantly trimmed with fringe, and ornamented at the sides and back, where it was gracefully looped, with large bows of pearl-colored velvet. The basque worn in connection with this dress was made to fit the form tight, and was trimmed with two bias bands of velvet, with satin cord and rich fringe, and velvet sash, cut with long pointed ends. Diamond drops glittered from her ears, neck, and arms, and in her gloved hand she held a beautiful bridal bouquet. Young Ainsley was dressed in an English wedding costume—dark, blue frock coat, white vest, pearl-colored trousers and lavender kid shoes. The same afternoon, the wedding ceremonies of Mr. Isaac Wolf, of Sedalia, Mo., and Miss Rebecca Rosemeyer, were performed at the Hebrew Temple. The bride was dressed in a rich, light-colored walking dress, with high corsage and short skirt. A double overskirt and short sash of the same material and color, cut castellated, and bound with self-colored silk fringe, with a heading of narrow self-colored satin folds, hung gracefully over the underskirt. The dress was made close-fitting, and en basque at the bottom, and had loose coat sleeves, trimmed on the shoulders and about the cuffs with the fringe. A large lavender silk bow, fastened with a cluster diamond pin, was placed in front of a ruffled collar of point d'algue lace, and solitary pearls were hung in her ears. She wore lavender kid gloves.

A FEARFUL ACCIDENT.

A Baby Stabbed to the Heart.

From the Cincinnati Times, 16th.

One of the most singular accidents we have had in this city for many months occurred at the residence of Mr. Vinage, near Jones' Station, on the line of the Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad, last Thursday night.

A married daughter, who lives in Kentucky, was on a visit to the old homestead, with her child, and some months ago the little one being hungry, was asked for a piece of bread, which the mother ordered the servant girl to get.

The latter picked up the child in her arms, took a long carving knife from the cupboard, and started down the cellar steps to the place where the bread was kept. In going down her foot slipped, and as she fell the knife stood point upward on the steps, the blade of which penetrated the heart of the child, producing instant death. The pen fails to depict the grief of the almost heart-broken mother when the corpse of her darling babe was brought into her presence. The house which only a few moments before was a scene of joy and festivity, was by the singular accident, turned into a place of mourning and sorrow.

The Militia Disbanded.

From the Lexington, Oct. 18.

Captain Levy's command of mounted militia left yesterday for Midway where they are to be disbanded. These troops, we are happy to say, conducted themselves as gentlemen, and were quiet and orderly. We have always questioned and still question, the policy of sending these militia here, but for the militia themselves are now responsible. If the nature of the mission on which they were sent had permitted, they would probably have rendered efficient service; but they found it impossible to gain glory in a war in which there was no one to fight on the other side.

This little martial episode in the annals of this Commonwealth is not likely to look well upon the page of history. It has no doubt cost the State a pretty round sum of money, and when provision has to be made for its payment, the representatives of the people will want to know what they received for it.

It is reported that the Lelands have purchased the Langham Hotel, London, now managed by Mr. Sanderson, a New Yorker.

LOUISVILLE.

MONDAY, OCTOBER 18, 1869.

Defeat of Mr. Pendleton.

It is the opinion of some that the defeat of Mr. Pendleton in Ohio in the late race for Governor of that State will lay that gentleman on the shelf. We are not of those who thus think of this matter; and we think, moreover, it would be better to withhold such opinions even if they were entertained. It may not be well for Democrats of the true faith even to think of laying such men as Pendleton on the table, much less to speak and to write flippantly on the subject. To shelve such men as Pendleton is to shelve Democracy in our humble opinion, and the less said about such things by Democrats the better.

The election in Ohio ought not to have been as it did. True, Pendleton made a good race, and cut down the opposition majority most wonderfully. He came very near being elected. But that was not enough. He ought to have carried the State. And he would have carried the State if the campaign had been rightly conducted. There was bad management, however, and want of faith in the result which led to defeat. The right faith and right management might have elected him.

But even if Mr. Pendleton is defeated it does not follow that he is to be thus summarily disposed of. Young, gifted, energetic and ambitious, he will be heard from again. He can only be shelved with Democracy itself. If he can't sit in the gubernatorial chair of Ohio, there are other places not less important to him to fill. And even if he occupies no political office, he will at least be an important place in the councils of his countrymen. As long as democracy lives and flourishes in our land, Mr. Pendleton will live and flourish with great principles and he cannot be put aside. He thinks, feels and acts Democratic, and while he thinks it and feels it and acts it so well, he cannot pass from the arena in which Democratic principles are in conflict with antagonistic governmental theories.

It is not our business to lecture the democrats of Ohio and Pennsylvania, but we will find that the only safe guides for democracy are the old party landmarks. The going off after strange issues to the getting of the old and proclaiming that Democracy of our time must have new issues, and lay aside old ones may be all well enough, but we don't understand it. We think the creeping of such theories into the heads of our would-be leaders is just what has done the mischief in Ohio and Pennsylvania. And the democrats may set it down for certain that whenever they become time-worn and lay aside time-honored principles for the clap-trap issues of the hour they will meet defeat sooner or later. It is best to cling to the principles of others, and if we thus fail, we will go down in honor. Our government was born in true Democracy, and our people are right on to the greatest heights of prosperity while true Democratic principles govern. We have, however, had me ill luck and some sad mishaps. True Democracy was not the author of the evil. We have done badly in proportion to our distance of departure from the good old faith of our fathers. If some of the pert and flippant democrats of our day don't learn by sad examples and mishaps that it may not be all to forget Jefferson and Jackson, and lay aside time-honored principles as a meaningless jargon we are mistaken. It is not some to defeat Democracy, with all its pure principles fully in force, that defeat is certain when principles are not regarded by its adherents. The Northern Democrats ought to have learned that there is nothing to be gained by any leaning to the mad issues which the Radicals have resurrected from the tomb of the rebellion. Let the Radicals have false issues and be successful with them for the moment if they can; but let the Democrats be contaminated thereby. Let us cling to principles and truths as old as our government, and we will triumph in the end. It is better to suffer defeat with our old principles unshaken than to go to victory with deceptive principles glittering upon us. Whenever and wherever our Democratic friends North or South have, from a Republican standpoint, looked at the questions which have sprung from the late rebellion and the negro, they have seen with false vision, and have consequently fallen into forbidden paths. Pendleton is an exponent of true Democracy; and the idea that he, who is just in the prime of life, is to be retired into obscurity because of a temporary defeat, is absurd. As Democracy lives, so will he; and though he will not be Governor of Ohio, he will continue a leader in the great party which has so often honored him, and which he, in turn, has never disgraced.

The people of Louisville generally gave up towards making our convention a success; but we state a fact only when we give credit to Blanton Duncan for his efforts in accomplishing such satisfactory results. He devoted himself to that labor for three months, and has reason to be proud of what was mainly achieved through his well directed energies. The convention did well in tendering him a vote of thanks.

The Humboldt Institute.

Is it not about time the public had heard something from the committee appointed to organize an effort for the establishment of the Humboldt Institute, including the public library, &c. &c? That committee was appointed on the 14th day of September last, four weeks ago, come tomorrow. If they have done nothing, at least let them say so. If they do not propose to do anything, let them say so. It has always been the trouble with Louisville, that in undertaking any enterprise her desires and designs exceed her capacities, and when she fails to accomplish all she designed, then she ceases all effort. This has been, and is yet, one of the great impediments in the way of our progress as a city. We are sometimes very great at doing things—on paper—but when we come to the work we often woefully fail. That we can succeed as a people in what we undertake, the past week has abundantly proven. The Commercial Convention, if it accomplished no other good, has satisfactorily and beyond all cavil, settled the question of our ability, when we set ourselves to the work.

Just here—and this is among ourselves—the question presents itself, should we have succeeded, should we have accomplished anything at all, if it had not been for the fear of disgrace in the eyes of the whole country, had we failed? Verily, the facts look that way. If they are so—if that was the successful moving power in the matter of the convention; let the same all-powerful motive be applied in the matter of the Humboldt Institute. A great public meeting, held on the Humboldt centennial, and composed of the wisdom, the virtue, the intelligence, the wealth, the enterprise and the benevolence of the city, resolved that we should have a great institute in our midst, to be dignified with the name of the great philosopher, and that among other notable and worthy ideas, it should embrace a great public library.

Louisville has no library worthy the name. She has made three or four or five or six or more efforts to organize a library, but they have all been futile. Why? What was—that has been the great hindering cause? Want of money? Not so! For if desired Louisville could raise a hundred thousand dollars. If it could be obtained in no other way, the saving of one-half the daily expenditure of the well-to-do, on the luxuries of wine and cigars, would in three months endow an institute that should be unsurpassed in the West.

It is not want of money. It is not want of ability. There is but one reason, sufficiently strong, and that is want of inclination. And that same reason would have swamped the success of the Commercial Convention had it not been for the inevitable disgrace which would forever have tarnished the escutcheon borne by our city. Our city's motto is "Progress," and not to progress, with all our advantages, will bring upon us a no less deserved than ineradicable shame. New Albany, with not one-fifth of our population, nor one-tenth of our own wealth, can boast of a Natural History Society, with a large and rapidly increasing museum and library, while Louisville can boast of—nothing of the kind. Is there no shame in this? Is there no disgrace? Is there, in all the city, one man or woman of energy, of enterprise, of liberality, who does not, cannot, feel the shame burning into the very soul? If the disgrace in the eyes of all the world of letters is not so imminent—if the shadow of its coming does not so threaten to overwhelm us, as that which drove us to provide for the Commercial Convention, it is none the less certain, none the less positive, none the less deep and damning.

If the men of the city cannot, or will not, do anything, will not our large-hearted women take hold of the matter? Will they not let the claims of their brothers, sons and lovers—the claims of the rising generation—urge them to action, without reference to what the men propose, yet fail to do? They may not undertake to get up a grand institute, but they can go to work calmly and resolutely and put a library into successful operation, while the men are studying how they shall go to work to start their grand institutes. Will not some of them make a movement? The Express will be pleased to hear from them on the subject.

The St. Louis Air Line Railroad.

The vote of last Saturday, though in the aggregate a small one, presents an exceedingly handsome majority for the ordinance. Out of 942 votes, as reported to the time of going to press, the majority is five hundred and eight, or nearly twenty-five per cent. more than the total vote against. This vote shows that the people of Louisville are determined to aid, in all reasonable methods, and to any reasonable amount, all public enterprises which promise to return such handsome dividends as the St. Louis road will return.

Those dividends may not be in direct cash on the stock paid, but they will be in a great increase of the trade which will inevitably flow into the city. And this trade will come from a section of country which, in former years, bought very largely in this city; but the building of the Ohio and Mississippi railroad directly through the southern part of Indiana and Illinois, carried it all to Cincinnati. The building of this air-line road to St. Louis will bring to our city all the trade along its line in Indiana and much of that in Illinois, because Louisville will then be much the nearest market for sales and supplies. By this line of road Louisville will reach a bed of excellent coal, at considerably less distance than by any other known route. Nor is a supply of coal the only point gained. The country is rich in iron and other minerals, which must necessarily find their market with us, and give our manufacturers an impetus which they will not so soon receive from any other source.

We have hope of the new War Secretary Belknap. His wife is a native of Kentucky and her brother was a rebel. LORD DERBY is very ill. Death is certain to win the last Derby.

The New York Herald wants Andy Johnson in the Senate. It says: "Johnson would be a valuable acquisition to the Senate. He would make the fly from the backs of the Radical leaders and preachers as he made it fly from the flanks of the Southern fire-eaters in 1860-61. He would wake up the Conscript Fathers and keep them dancing. We should have a lively time and a regular shaking up of the dry bones of the Senate with Andy Johnson on the floor, and so we hope he will be elected. He is the man of all men for Senator from Tennessee."

The Herald is right. Johnson ought to be returned. Whatever may have been his political errors he is an honest man. He sought to protect the Constitution against the assaults of the Radical traitors, who in revenge impeached him. Let him go back where he may meet his foes face to face. And Tennessee will send him there.

The New York Sun figures up the operations of the gold ring in September, and finds that if all accounts are paid in full, the bull combination represented by Smith, Gould & Martin, will lose over fourteen million dollars. If they avoid settlements for gold purchased by Belden, Speyers, Livermore, Heath and others, and settle only those of Smith, Gould & Martin, they will make a profit of three hundred and seventy-six thousand dollars.

The dramatic market is still ruled by the "barges."

SPECIAL NOTICES.

The Fall and its Dangers.

Animal as well as vegetable life is powerfully affected by the great atmospheric change that takes place in the fall. But for the flowers, the foliage and the herbs of the field there is no help. Their time has come and they must die. It is otherwise with man. For him the means of reinvigoration have been provided by skill and science. To recruit his exhausted energies and fortify himself against the disorders generated by the sudden depression of temperature and the unwholesome exhalations of autumn, let him tune his nervous system, invigorate his digestion and give edge to his appetite with HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. He may then face the morbid influences of the season fearlessly. The chilling nights and heavy morning mists will have no power to make him shiver and burn, to affect his liver, to disorder his stomach or his bowels, to rack his joints with rheumatism, or to render any latent element of disease in his system active and dangerous. To the sufferer from general debility, whether constitutional or arising from other causes, this potent vegetable specific is earnestly recommended. And let it be remembered that physical weakness opens the door to all maladies. Vigor is the chief defense of the human structure against all causes of disease, and HOSTETTER'S BITTERS may be truly pronounced the safest and surest of all invigorants. It is the most genial of all vegetable tonics, and is admirably adapted to the wants of weak and nervous men. It is as delicate as well as as powerful as any tonic. oc18 2t
